

Pension Market Trends and Regulation in Eastern Europe and Asia

Conclusions / findings:

- Eastern Europe and Asia have made significant advances in building up / restructuring their pension systems. However, in countries such as China and India the focus has been on the urban population -> How can the rural population be reached? What are possible access points?
- Various countries have pursued a twin objective: building up pension systems and advancing their national capital markets
- Emerging pension funds as investors in microfinance
- Prudent person principle vs. quantitative limits
- Choice -> Sustainability-Driven Default Option
